Bio:

Kelly Pennington is a teacher, trainer, and consultant who works with individuals and organizations to amplify their communication and connections through English. Kelly learned the value of dedication and determination as her journey has taken her across continents from the military, to corporations, and finally into education. Besides her degree in Business Management, she holds a CELTA, IHCAM, Delta Modules 1,2 & 3, Train the Trainer along with other international certifications. Kelly's primary focus is BE and ESP but is passionate about all facets of ELT and education as she works with teacher training and mentorship.

Abstract:

Teachers want students to be able to confidently study independently. Unfortunately, not all adult learners can take on the challenge of learning a new language without the constant assistance from a teacher. This session will explore the ideas of learner autonomy and self-efficacy then suggest a step by step procedure that learners can implement on their own to study while using podcasts.
